Because every young person deserves an opportunity to thrive

Our highlights

- 90 cents in every dollar going to ValenTIA program in Bolivia
- 12 Months since our residency program commenced with 6 young people living in the ValenTIA Transition Centre

- 100% of TIA Bolivia's staff in Cochabamba are Bolivian nationals
- 7 years since TIA started changing young lives in Bolivia

Changing young lives

Many of you will remember the journey from living with family into life as an independent young adult. Maybe it was an exciting, if somewhat scary time, full of dreams and opportunity. Most likely your parents, family, friends and teachers helped you prepare for life as a 'grownup'.

But it could equally have been a journey forced upon you by circumstance - full of fear and one you were totally unprepared for. This is the reality for thousands of young people currently living in state care in Cochabamba Bolivia. When these children reach eighteen all support ceases and they are alone, often turning to crime, drugs and life on the streets - with few prospects and little to no support to break the cycle of poverty and neglect.

That is where TIA makes a difference - one that can literally change lives - providing life skills, opportunity, guidance and most importantly hope to young people transitioning to independence from state care.

With the generous support of our VolunTIAs, donors and corporate sponsors, TIA's projects have made considerable progress in the past year and we thank everyone in Australia, Bolivia and around the world for helping change the lives of these young people.

A message from our Chair

Gillian Bester

Dear all,

What a year it has been. I feel TIA is just like a youngster stepping out of state care and finding its own way in the world as an adult. We grew up a lot this year and our focus on strategic direction and expanded management committee expertise are good examples of that.

The management committee has spent considerable time focusing on the growth and development for TIA, as we work on both our short and long-term aims.

In the short term we have our residential program in Cochabamba well-established, and the relationships with institutions where young people receive our workshops are excellent, with our programs in strong demand.

In the long term, we continue to develop our ability and expertise in delivering programs and workshops aimed at enhancing the ability of our young clients to enter society as independent and capable people, able to realize their full potential as adults, and break the cycle of poverty and disempowerment.

In Australia, we have focussed on building and strengthening strategic partnerships including growing our corporate supporter base and raising awareness about TIA's mission. Working towards endorsement as a deductible gift recipient has also been a priority of ours so that we can attract funds from grant makers and philanthropic bodies, as well as more individual donors. We recognise that recruiting and retaining the life blood of our organisation - our VolunTIAs - is crucial for our ongoing success and this remains one of our key priorities.

We have been very lucky to attract a number of new members to the management committee and we are now a team of six. Tessa, Jennifer and I were delighted to welcome Gail Spark, Rob Spurr and Barry Mitchell to the committee. We now have a wide range of experience and all are working hard to ensure TIA has a long and sustainable future. Gail has taken up the role of Secretary and has worked miracles in ensuring TIA meets our regulatory and legal requirements. Rob is our new Treasurer, applying some good discipline and rigour to our financial systems. And Barry has taken on the role of Executive Director on the ground in Adelaide and is working closely with our volunteer team to raise funds for Bolivia.

As with all hellos, there are sad goodbyes. In September, I replaced Sonja Mapleston as Chair. Sonja is currently on maternity leave and we look forward to welcoming her back to the committee soon. We also said goodbye to Kanchana Pathirana who had been a trusty, devoted and hard-working Executive Director. I'd like to acknowledge the amount of work and dedication she gave to the role and am thankful she remains a part of the TIA family in Adelaide.

Our Australian team have done an amazing job holding an impressive amount of fundraising events but I also need to thank our regular sponsors. We would not have survived this year without Sentient Computing, whose reliable monthly contributions have kept TIA's head above water. Thanks too to Positive Lending Solutions who has also come on board with regular donations. We also have a number of individuals who put their money where their mouth is. Thank you from all of us in Australia, but particularly from our team on the ground in Bolivia where your dollars make a real difference.

I hope to see you at a TIA event in the next year.

Gracias por todo.

International Director's report

Tessa Henwood-Mitchell

Hola to all our beautiful supporters all around the world,

It's my favourite time of year again, one to reflect on our challenges and our successes, and look ahead to the year to come. I sometimes have to pinch myself to make sure I'm not dreaming when I realise just how far TIA has come over the past 7 years. From the vague and ambitious idea of a naïve and optimistic 20-year-old social work student, to a successful and effective non-profit organization that changes the lives of hundreds of young people each year - what a journey it has been!

As TIA's International Director I have been based in Bolivia working alongside our local team for almost 2 years now. The ValenTIA Transition Project, which we started creating about three years ago, was only really in its beginning stages when I first moved here. We were running workshops with two centres and were in discussions with two more. We had not even opened the transition centre or began our residential program. Now, almost two years later, and as you will see in this report, we have grown so much! We now are working with 11 different centres with over 150 young people in our workshop program, and we have 6 young residents in our residential program, as well as many other young people accessing our other services on a daily basis. We have developed a fantastic reputation with the local government and many children's homes, non-profit organisations and NGOs. We are part of a Latin American network of organisations that work with young people leaving care, and we were even invited to present our work at an international conference hosted by UNICEF in Buenos Aires, Argentina, late last year.

But none of this would have been possible without our incredible local staff. We have been extremely fortunate to find a group of committed, motivated, professional, passionate and innovative people who drive our vision and take it further than we would have imagined possible. I have loved to work alongside this group and learn from them, dream with them and face the challenges and triumphs that we face on a daily basis together. Rest assured, our young people here are in extremely good hands!

While I'm speaking of our young people, let me tell you about a few of them that we have had the huge privilege of watching grow:

Armando

One of the first young people I met when I first moved here in 2014 and started visiting our workshops and meeting the young people we were working with was Armando. He was a boisterous 16 year old teen, fun-loving, energetic, engaging, and a great communicator. I was quickly told that he hadn't always been like that. When he first started attending our workshops 6 months prior, he was withdrawn, hostile, aggressive, and unwilling to participate. I was told by the centre that he was living in that he had been that way ever since he had begun living there two years prior after coming out of a life on the streets. That was certainly not the same boy that I met in December of 2014. As one of our first participants of the workshops, it was incredible for us to realise so early on that we were obviously doing something right. Armando told me himself that thanks to the workshops that we were running at his centre weekly, and the guidance and friendship of our facilitators, he learned to communicate in a more positive way, he felt more confident and believed in himself again. Recently I saw him again, and he again told me how much we had helped him and how grateful he was for everything we did, explaining that without us he didn't know what would have happened to him, but now he is working, studying, and has great friends and a solid support network.

Adriana

Adriana is a young girl whom I hold particularly close to my heart. I met her when I came to Bolivia for the first time in 2008. She was living in the government run children's home Ciudadela SEDEGES (now called Centro Q'anchay), and was only 9 years old. I worked with her younger sister Gabriela and she would often come to visit her and we would chat. She would often write me really sweet little letters and draw me pictures. Every year when I returned she would be one of the first to run up and give me a hug. She was very shy and quiet when I first met her, often waiting to speak until we were sitting in her room in private. About 1.5 years ago Adriana first started participating in our workshops when we began running them at Centro Q'anchay. She was then 16 years old. After about 6 months I went to visit and see one of the workshops, and I was just amazed to see that Adriana was one of the most confident, articulate, and active participants in the whole group! This was not the same girl that I had known for so long. Since then she has blossomed into an incredible young woman, with so many hopes and dreams, and a tonne of self-confidence and motivation to achieve them. While I'm writing this we're getting ready for her to move into our residency program because she turns 18 on September the 23rd! She was also the protagonist of the documentary that was made about TIA earlier this year, so make sure you watch that and you will understand why Adriana is such a special young woman.

Now I have just returned from a research trip to India and Nepal where I was looking at the after care programs and support that exists for young people there who are leaving care homes, and I have come away from that experience believing even more in the work that we are doing here. What we are doing here is very rare, and so necessary. The young people I met in India and Nepal all said the same thing - that for them, the most important and helpful thing for them while they are in their transition into independence, is to have people in their corner, who believe in them and will support them and stand by them while they try, fall, get up and try again until they succeed. And thanks to all of you, our amazing supporters, I'm so proud to say that we do exactly that.

Executive Director's report

Barry Mitchell

Dear TIA friends and supporters,

The past year has been one of growth and development for TIA, as we work on building a foundation here in Australia and in Bolivia to meet TIA's future goals.

Having our International Director resident in Cochabamba, and able to devote time to developing local relationships, as well as leading and guiding the staff there, has been a great asset in our ability to look forward and think about future projects, as well as consolidating the current ones.

In Australia, this means that we need to continue to raise funds to support the work of the team in Bolivia, and of course to continue to provide guidance and feedback where needed.

Our fundraising efforts have raised an impressive $56,808 and this figure is the result of a lot of hard work and effort from our Australian team across three states. These include our Annual TIA quiz night, the highly popular Asado in the Adelaide Hills, movie nights, a bogan bingo night in Perth, and South American drinks, nibbles and music in Melbourne. Thanks so much to everyone who worked to make these events a success and to everyone who came along and had a good time!

This year has seen some changes in the Australian team, with the departure of our previous dedicated and hard-working Executive Director, Kanchana Pathirana. I have been privileged to work in this role since the beginning of 2016, and to work with our Management Committee and Executive team, as well as other volunTIAs.

In the short time I have filled this role, we have been able to consolidate and build our team, with the addition to the team of several skilled people, including Sarah Burrage as VolunTIA Co-ordinator, Patricia Ahumada as Events Manager, Rahul Furtado as Fundraising Manager, Sarah Jonas as Assistant Events Manager, and Rosaleine Almeida as Finance Manager, and one of our longest standing VolunTIA Zach Cassidy stepping into the role of Marketing and Communications Manager.

Together with our continuing Executive Team and the collective wisdom of the Management Committee we have been able to fulfil the year's aims, and to plan for the year ahead.

Thank you to all of our supporters, including our VolunTIAs, and those who have contributed financially to the work of TIA. We look forward to the coming year, and hope to have your continuing support.

Best wishes.

We believe every child deserves support and opportunity

The ValenTIA Transition Project aims to empower young people as they move out of state care in a two-phase approach encompassing training and guidance prior to turning eighteen and transition support after they exit care.

Phase 1: Preparatory Workshops

These workshops are developed and delivered by TIA's Cochabamba staff to young people aged between 14-18 years and residing in various children's homes around the state. They aim to prepare them for independent living in the areas of practical skills, job ready training, values, self-belief, health, sexual education, financial management, rights, responsibilities, and developing a plan for their future.

Phase 2: Transition Centre

This centre has completed its first year of operation, providing support for adolescents transitioning out of state care. Components include: temporary accommodation (either in the centre or supporting external residency), tutoring, counseling, job skills training, support and assistance in studying and working, finding suitable accommodation, mentoring, community service, financial management, and basic life skills training.

About TIA

TIA is an Australian grassroots non-profit organisation working in Bolivia, South America. We work with young people through their transition from state care into independence, because we believe that they deserve a chance to show the world their potential.

We are a registered charity and an incorporated association in South Australia, and a registered Foundation in Cochabamba, Bolivia.

Adelaide born Tessa Henwood-Mitchell started TIA in 2009 as a 21 year old after spending time volunteering in Bolivia and being profoundly impacted by the plight of children in state care. Seven years on TIA has helped hundreds of young people on their pathway to independence.

TIA means Aunty in Spanish and we are more than just an organisation - we're a family.

AUDITOR'S REPORT

I have examined the financial statements in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards.

The audit has been planned and performed in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards to provide a reasonable level of assurance as to whether the financial statements are free of misstatement. My procedures include examination, on a test basis, of evidence supporting the amounts and other disclosures in the financial statements, and the evaluation of accounting policies and significant accounting estimates. These procedures have been undertaken to form an opinion whether, in all material respect, the financial statements are presented fairly in accordance with Australian Accounting Concepts and Standards and Statutory requirements so as to present a view of the organisation which is consistent with our understanding of its operations.

My examination has been limited to the audit of the balance sheet and selected income and expenditure items.

Notwithstanding the above, in my opinion, these statements present fairly the results of the organisation for the year ended 30th June, 2016 and the financial state of the organisation as at 30th June, 2016.
